

MICHAEL RAPAPORT

American Actor and Comedian

With a career spanning over three decades and more than 60 films, the native New Yorker Michael Rapaport has solidified his position as an indomitable talent in the entertainment industry. From starring in the sitcom The War at Home to his iconic performances in Hollywood blockbusters like True Romance, Cop Land, and Beautiful Girls, as well as his memorable appearances in television hits such as Friends and Atypical, and directing his award-winning documentary Beats, Rhymes & Life: The Travels of a Tribe Called Quest, Rapaport's versatility and charisma have captivated audiences worldwide. Currently gracing the screens in Hulu's Life & Beth, his magnetic presence continues to draw acclaim and admiration. He also hosts the worldwide phenomenon I Am Rapaport Stereo Podcast.

Beyond his contributions to entertainment, Rapaport is a relentless advocate for Jewish issues and a fearless critic of misinformation and hate. In the wake of the October 7th attack on Israel and the Jewish people, Rapaport's passion for combating anti-Semitism has only deepened. His unrelenting dedication to raising awareness, fostering understanding, and standing in solidarity with the Jewish community shines brightly in these tumultuous times.
